

Alpharetta Arboretum at Wills Park

Welcome to the Alpharetta Arboretum at Wills Park. An arboretum is a collection of trees assembled and maintained for education, research and enjoyment.

Established in 2008, the Alpharetta Arboretum at Wills Park showcases the natural setting and beauty of many native and non-native tree species in Wills Park, a 110 acre multi-use park near the downtown center of Alpharetta.

As you wander through the park on the walking trail, you will see many street, border and accent trees that offer an educational perspective on the wide choices of trees suited for planting in the urban landscape.

Please take time to walk through the Arboretum at your own pace and enjoy the beauty and natural settings. Be sure to visit Alpharetta's other arboretums at Webb Bridge Park and Cogburn Park. We invite you make the Alpharetta Arboretums destinations you will return to often throughout the year.
